THE DAILY CLARION.

THE ANGEL OF SLEEP.

BY LESLIE WALKER.

He droops his plumy snow-soft wings. He waves his balmy hand,

And wide the gate of silence swings

That guards the shadowy land. Forget is Time, the sentinel That stands outside the door;

The gloomy trains of care as well, That clogged our steps before; Ob! river of oblivion!

Thy draughts are sweet and deep, For Memory slumbers on her throne, Rocked by the angel, Sleep. H.

There is a face whose loveliness Is marred by hues of care ; But sleep hath swept it with his kiss, And made it smooth and fair. There is a worn and weaty brain.

That rests until the morn ; ere is a heart which heat with pain, is no more forlows. Den Grotner! how divine Must be that slumber deep. More sweet, more calm, more free than thine

At an interview between Hamilton, the Morrisses, and others, the former remarked that Washington was reserved and aristocratic, even to his intimate friends, and allowed no one to be famillar with him. Gouverneur Morris said that was mere fanev, and he could be as familiar with Washington as with any of his other riends. Hamilton replied:

"If you will, at his next reception wening, gently slap him on the shoulhappy I am to see you look so well.' supper and wine shall be provided for you and a dozen of your friends.'

The challenge was accepted. On the evening appointed a large number ear Morris entered, bowed, shook ads, laid his left hand on Washinggton's shoulder and said: My dear General, I am very happy
